

... How I feel affects other people!!!

Sometimes I Wish That I Were Lucky

This is a poem about the fact that I don't believe in luck and it's not enough to get us the personal satisfaction of winning that we need. I believe we have to focus on how GOOD we are and be willing to proclaim it out loud.

Sometimes I wish I were lucky Instead of just so . . . good.

If I could just be lucky I might share my luck
No (in fact) I know I would.

Some people say that I'm lucky. I correct and remind them that I'm blessed
I'm fortunate, spiritual, in tune with myself. Nothing outweighs my thirst for happiness

You see luck, itself, doesn't last. It supplies a glimmer of hope or chance
Luck forces you to take risks. Being blessed allows you to take a stance

Luck can give you that "On top of the world" feeling... That instant fix of elation
Being fortunate keeps you "on top of the world"
And allows you to enjoy the sensation

Spirituality is such a popular thing now But it means much more than meets the eye
If you get lucky enough to get spiritual Hold on, don't let that spirit die

If you get lucky enough to find yourself Enjoy the challenge of introspection
Realize its value toward your growth

Understand that you're supposed to have success. Your purpose is ordained
You must choose to lead a prosperous life. You must make sunshine out of rain

But, I must admit Sometimes I wish I were lucky Instead of just so . . . good
But would I stand out from the rest?

If you're lucky you can be in good company
If you're blessed you can be with the best
