

... How I feel affects other people!!!

Thy WILL be DONE

Say that with me... [Thy Will Be Done]
That's wasn't too hard, was it?
Now try believing it.

I remember being down on my knees muttering
those four words
And thinking that after the Kingdom arrived
All God's plans would be fulfilled
(I remember thinking that)
Now I know it!

And what I know is that the Kingdom has arrived.
And the mysterious ways
many have considered a part of God's handiwork are nothing more than the countless blessings in his crystal clear plans that we are just not aware of.

So this new road we take to healing begins
With our latest testimony of appreciation for life.
A testimony that will last at least until we get out this door
and back to cursing drivers who cut us off...
Rolling our eyes at a teenage outfit...
or blaming a small tree for a forest fire.
A testimony borne from tragedy that questions
"Thy's" W.I.L.L.
(What Is the Lord's Lesson?)

How will I get through this one?
When will you lift this burden?
Where will I go from here?
Why me???

And his answer will be, "Are you DONE yet..."
(You see D.O.N.E. is Delivering my Omnipotent News Everyday)
"... or do you profess faith
only in convenient retrospect?

I scheduled this day for you because JOB is no longer available.

I scheduled this day because I love you
And this new level is not made to have you question me...
But to help you understand me.
Understand that what I want is for you to love me and live by me everyday.

How? Anger is controllable, and will only blind you from the blessing

I woke you up with today.

When? This pain is temporary,
yet temporary can last a long time.

Where? Loss is necessary and always precedes growth.

Why? Understand that even if you don't,
I'll always love you.

I'm DONE."
